Key to Part Second.

THE Second Part contains several series of descents and family records, in detail, of both males and females. The parents' names are in capitals.

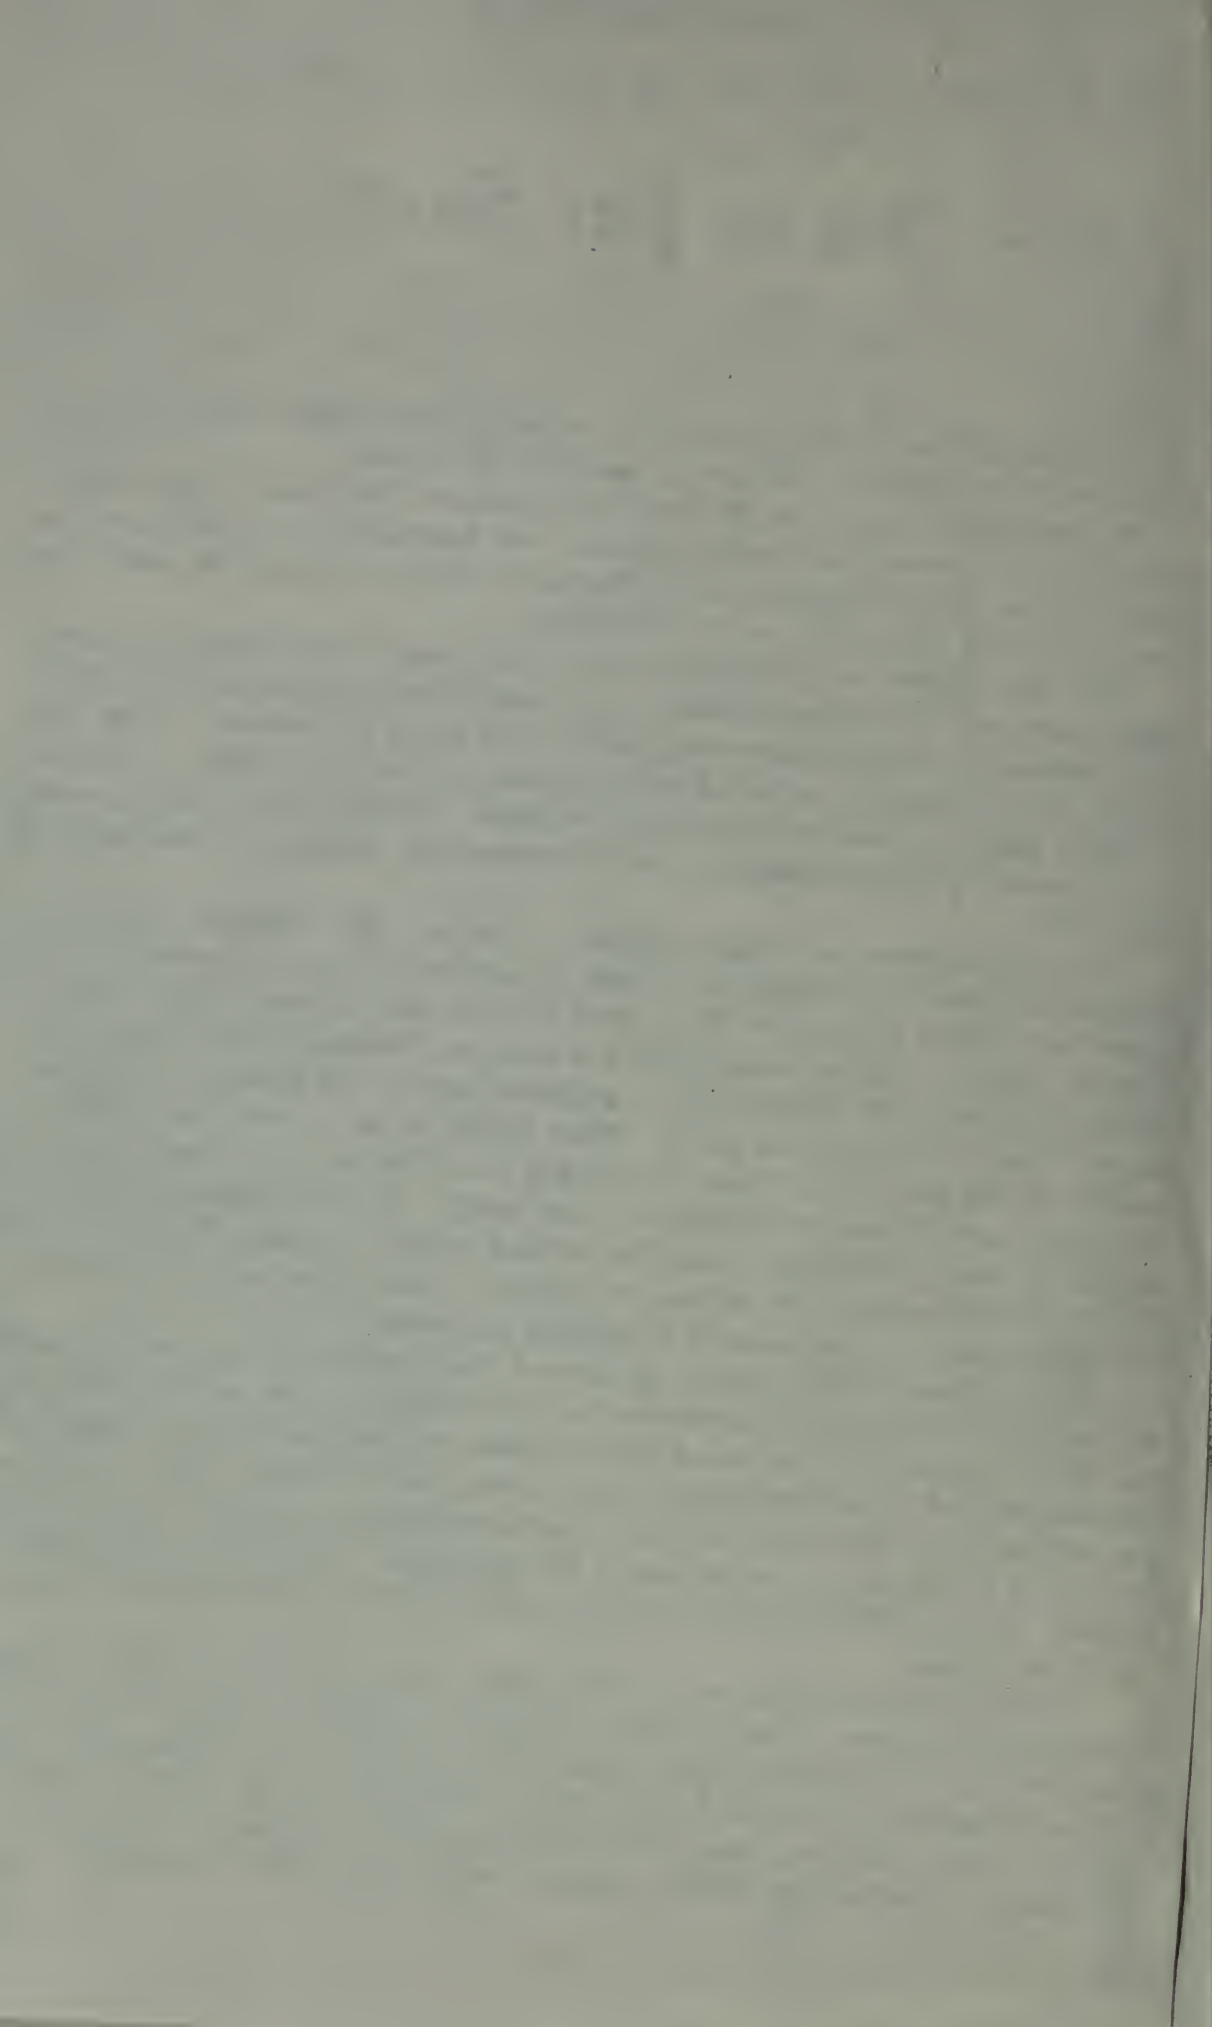

To illustrate the order in which descents are given, see Part Second, Eighth Series. There David Turner and his family are given; then Deborah, his first child, and her descendants are given; Nancy and her's, Rhoda and her's, David and his, and so on through the whole family, in the order of their ages.

With the children of the parents whose names stand at the head of a series, begins a new series of reference numbers, 1, 2, 3, and so on in regular succession to the end of that series. These numbers are placed on the left of all children's names, who have, or have had families, and which could be traced in detail, in a column on the right of that, in which the parents numbers are to be found. On the left of parent's names are corresponding reference numbers, also Roman numbers denoting the generation of each parent.

In tracing descents, see Eighth Series, as above. The reference number of Deborah, the first child of David and Rhoda, is number 1; run down the left hand column of numbers till you find VI. 1., there you will find Deborah Turner, wife of Freeman Josselyn. The reference number of their son Freeman is No. 9; now follow the left hand column for numbers VII. 9, and there may be seen Freeman Josselyn and Abigail Bowman, his wife, and family. Then follow on in the left hand column of numbers till you find VI. 2. There you will find Nancy Turner wife of Asa Carpenter, and second child of David and Rhoda, and their family. The reference number of their daughter Rhoda, is No. 10, look along the left hand column of numbers for VII. 10, and there is Rhoda Carpenter wife of John W. Andrews. And in the same manner through the whole series. To trace ancestry is precisely the reverse of this.

To trace from the First Part to the Second Part, observe the reference number, against the name referred to in the note at the bottom of the page and the Series referred to, look for that Series in the Second Part and there will be found the same name and reference number heading the Series. For example, find IV. 16 in Part First, there you will find Israel Turner and Deborah Lincoln, the reference number of David, their fifth son, is 34, the note at the bottom of the page says, "See Second Part, Eighth Series." Find the Eighth Series and at the head of it you will see V. 34, David Turner and Rhoda Porter.

To trace from the Second to the First Part. Begin with a child of the latest generation, for instance, Jonathan son of Eliza Ann, VII. 11, and Ezra Franklin. Find No. 11 in the right hand column under VI. 2 in the left hand column, there you will find Eliza Ann, daughter of Asa and Nancy Carpenter, then look for No. 2, Nancy's reference number, in right column under No.'s V. 34, there is Nancy daughter of David and Rhoda. Now look for David's reference number, 34, in the right hand column in the First Part, and against the fourth generation, and there you will find David, son of Israel and Deborah. Thence trace back to Humphrey by the rule in the First Part.

Abbreviations: a for age, b for born, chil for children, d for died, dau for daughter, m for married, mo for month, no for number, gen for generation, r for residence in 1851.

The place of birth, death, or residence in 1851, of the Father is in all cases stated if known, and it is to be understood that those of the mother and children are the same as those of the father, unless different ones are named.

If the place of birth &c. of any of the children are not the same as those of the father, then the first which differs is stated, and all that follow will be taken to be the same as those of that child, unless different ones are named.

P R E F A C E .

THE great object of the Compiler of the following work has been to give the descendants of HUMPHREY TURNER, according to their generations and families, in plain and convenient manner as possible. He has varied the form and manner of in some respects, from that of any genealogical work which has fallen under his notice, and flatters himself that he has in some measure improved upon them. In a work of this kind, repetitions will necessarily occur; brevity, however, has been studied, as far as consistent with convenience and perspicuity.

PART I. gives his male descendants in a general form, so far as they could be readily obtained; and the females in each family are named, but not their descendants, until we reach the fifth generation.

PART II. contains several series of Family Records in detail, giving dates of Births, Marriages, Deaths, &c., commencing as far back as authentic records could be found. The descendants of both males and females are brought down to the present time, — including husbands and wives who have married into TURNER families, and their descendants.

Perfect accuracy can hardly be expected in a work so complex and multifarious, and one embracing so many abbreviations and figures. Some errors may have crept through inaccurate returns of individuals; and others, perhaps, for want of sufficient care, or from misapprehension on the part of the Compiler. Great care and pains, however, have been taken to make the work as correct as possible, and it is hoped it will prove as much so as from the nature of the case could well be expected.

With a consciousness of having endeavored to do the subject justice, and with all due deference, the book is submitted to the candor and indulgence of those who have patronized the undertaking.

JACOB TURNER.

N. B. It is with much pleasure that the Editor acknowledges the efficient assistance of the Hon. SAMUEL A. TURNER, of South Scituate, — as well from his personal exertions in furnishing manuscript records, as from two printed tables on the subject, presented by him.

Also, the courtesy of Dr. T. LARKIN TURNER, of Boston, for materials in a the work, derived from a mass of records, collected by him for a somewhat similar, much more comprehensive and extended work.

Also, that of Mr. JAMES LORING, of Boston, for records material to the prosecution of the work.

J. T

Boston, July, 1852.

Key to Part First.

EACH page contains two columns. The parents' names are in small capitals, with reference numbers on the left of the names, and Roman numbers (denoting generations) on the left of those.

The names of children are placed under those of their parents; those having reference numbers are on the right hand, with reference numbers on the right of their names; the other children are on the left.

Each generation begins with number one, applied to the first child having a reference number, and continues on in a regular series of numbers, to the end of that generation.

In tracing descents, look in the right hand column for the reference number of any child, as: Thomas, third son of Humphrey; then run down the left hand column until you find II, 3, and there will be found Thomas Turner and Sarah Hiland, his wife. When she takes his son Charles, No. 16, then follow down the left hand column and against I, 16, you will find Charles Turner and Mercy Curtis; and so on through the whole.

In tracing ancestry, take for instance: Cushing, No. 30, son of Rhoda Hatch and Parker Baker, of VII. generation, reference number 145. Look for No. 145 in the right hand column, opposite the VI. generation, and there find Rhoda, daughter of Seth Hatch and Mercy Hatch, their numbers VI, 84. Now look for No. 84 in the right hand column, against the V. generation, and there will be found Seth, son of Mary Turner and Seth Hatch, their numbers V, 48. Look for No. 48 on the right, against the IV. generation, there you will find Mary, daughter of Thomas Turner and Mary Bryant, their numbers IV, 24. Look for No. 24 on the right, against the III. generation, and there you will see Thomas, son of Charles Turner and Mercy Curtis; and so on back to Humphrey.

A.

HUMPHREY TURNER, according to tradition, came from Essex in England, and, with his family, arrived at Plymouth about 1630. In the absence of records to verify the tradition, doubts are entertained of Essex being his former place of residence. Dr. T. Larkin Turner, of Boston, has, for several years past, had an agent in England for the purpose of examining the records in Essex and other counties, for some account of Humphrey and his ancestors; but, up to the present time, nothing has been found. In the county of Devonshire, however, there are records of several families of Turners, and from a general similarity of christian names prevailing in those families and in those of Humphrey and his descendants, and other circumstances, it may be assumed as somewhat probable that Humphrey and his ancestors were of that county; and hopes are still entertained of finding records of them. It may be that when he came over, he sailed from some port in Essex, which gave rise to the tradition that he had there resided.

Rev. Samuel Deane, the able author of the "History of Scituate," says, page 360, "Humphrey Turner, tanner, arrived with his family in Plymouth, 1628. He had a house-lot assigned him, 1629, and erected a house and resided there until 1633, probably; the latter being the date of the laying out of his house-lot on Kent street," in Scituate. "The farm, however, on which he resided was east of Colman's Hills." And again, speaking of the settlements on and about those hills, he says, pages 8 and 9, "Here Humphrey Turner had a house and farm—though as yet a Plymouth man before 1633," but "The earliest notice of a settlement at Scituate which has record to verify it, bears date 1628." Deane makes these statements as facts, without qualification, having records, probably, as authority for his assertions.

That Humphrey Turner was among the earliest and most efficient in the settlement of Scituate is abundantly evident. He was decidedly a practical man,—a tanner by trade, and possessed of that judgment, discretion, energy and perseverance of character, which eminently fitted him to be one of the pioneers in beginning and carrying forward a new settlement.

The old colony records bear ample testimony to the truth of the remark of Deane, page 360, that "He was a useful and enterprising man in the new settlement, and often employed in public business." He was a member of the first church, represented the town several years as Deputy to the General Court, and was Commissioner, Constable, &c.

Very few, if any of the early settlers of New England, it is believed, have had descendants more numerous or more widely spread throughout the country than those of Humphrey Turner. And, without ostentation, we think truth will bear us out in saying that on the score of morality, piety, intelligence and usefulness as members of the community, they will not suffer in comparison with any other class or portion of the citizens of the United States.

Two of his sons were named John, and designated in his will as "John" and "Young son John;" so named, tradition says, at the instance of godfathers. Both brought up families and died at a good old age, in Scituate.

Samuel Humphrey Turner, of the seventh generation, now owns and occupies the old farm in Scituate where Humphrey Turner lived and died, and over whose grave it is in contemplation, in the course of the present year, to erect a suitable monument.

— B. —

THOMAS TURNER, Esq., grandson of Humphrey, was a distinguished lawyer of facetious memory, and cotemporary with and a familiar friend of Michael Wanton, a leader of the Society of Friends. Turner was often playing off his jests and sarcasms upon Wanton, who, though not so witty, perhaps, yet had his pertinent answer, and always received Turner's raillery with good humor. On one occasion Wanton had been quite successful on a fishing excursion, and, on his return to White's Ferry, he found an assemblage of gentlemen attending a reference trial, and among them Esq. Turner, who thus addressed him, "Friend Wanton, you are like the apostle Peter; in the first place he was a fisherman, and so are you; he was a preacher, and so are you; he denied his Lord, and so do you." Wanton was so much pleased with the witticism that he caused an entertainment to be prepared of his fish, and invited the whole company to dine. Tradition has it that the company, after partaking of the feast of fat things, and notwithstanding their high appreciation of the sarcastic wit of the lawyer, decided that Wanton had the advantage on that occasion, his display being much more substantial and useful.

REV. CHARLES TURNER was b. Oct. 26, 1732, O. S., m. Mary Rand, daughter of Rev. William Rand, 1756, d. Aug. 10, 1818, Turner, Me., a. 86. "He graduated at Harvard College in 1752, and three years afterwards became the settled minister of Duxbury, Mass. In 1773 he was elected a member of the Senate of Massachusetts, and continued a member of that body until 1778, and was a member of the Convention which ratified the Constitution of the United States. In 1791 he removed his family to the town of Turner, in the then District of Maine. In 1803 he was one of the electors of President and Vice President, and visited Boston in the discharge of that duty. As a divine and a patriot, he was conspicuous, and as a man without reproach."

MARY RAND. Her father, Rev. William Rand, was b. Mar., 1700, m. Bridget Cook, 1724. They had five children, viz:—

Persis b. Oct. 19, 1726, d. Aug. 26, 1743, a. 17.

Mary b. Aug. 16, 1731, m. Rev. Charles Turner, 1756, d. Dec. 15, 1815, a. 84.

"COL. WILLIAM TURNER, youngest son of the venerable Charles, graduated at Harvard College, 1767. At the commencement of the Revolution, he raised a company of volunteers in Scituate and marched for the relief of Boston. In opening the effective batteries upon Dorchester Heights, he displayed the intrepidity of his character and soon afterwards was appointed aid to Gen. Washington, with the rank of Major. He served in every active campaign of the Revolution. * * * In 1777 and 1778 he was a member of the General Court of Massachusetts. He was also a member of the Convention which formed the Constitution of that State, and also of a special Congress of Delegates, holden at Concord, to adjust the public currency. * * * He served, at different periods of the war, as Aid to Generals Washington, Lee, Green, Lincoln and Knox. After the close of the Revolution, he represented the town of Scituate several years in the Massachusetts Legislature. In 1801 he removed his family to Turner, Me., where he d. 1807, a. 62, and where a suitable monument has been erected to his memory, by the filial affection of his daughter, Mrs. Oriens Humphrey, of Boston."

GOV. JAMES TURNER was a descendant of Thomas, third son of Humphrey. His father, Thomas, removed from Boston to Southampton, Va., about 1760, and afterwards to N. Carolina. He had five sons and three daughters, Joseph, Jacob, Henry, John, James, Hannah, Polly, and Nancy. The four first were never married; Jacob was a Captain in the war of the Revolution and fell at the battle of Germantown. James, the youngest of the sons and the subject of this sketch, became Governor of N. Carolina, and was several years in the Senate of the United States. His grandfather, Thomas, was the most distinguished lawyer ever raised in the old colony. Ephraim, his father's brother, established schools of politeness, so called, in Boston, which were continued many years by his son William. These schools, it is said, did much towards polishing the manners of the city of Boston. Hon. Daniel Turner, son of Gov. James, has been several years a member of Congress, and now resides in Warrenton, N. Carolina.

G.

RACHEL CUSHING was a descendant of Dea. Matthew Cushing, who came to this country in 1638 and settled in Hingham, in the colony of New Plymouth. His son, Hon. John Cushing, m. Sarah Hawke. JUDGE JOHN TURNER was a man of strong powers of mind, active, courteous, and correct in business, of unimpeachable integrity and possessed the confidence of his fellow citizens in an eminent degree. He was employed in public business almost constantly during a long and useful life, and filled many honorable and responsible offices in his native town of Pembroke, and in the county of Plymouth. He was one of the Selectmen, Town Clerk, a Justice of the Peace throughout the State, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and represented the town many years in the General Court of Mass. In short, he was one of the most useful, influential and distinguished men in that vicinity.

——— J. ———

COL. CHARLES TURNER, son of the Rev. Charles, was engaged in public business of various kinds for more than half a century. His urbanity, readiness, accuracy and facility in doing business, made him a favorite of all classes. He was a Justice of the Peace throughout the commonwealth, several years a member of both branches of the Mass. Legislature, five years a member of the Congress of the United States, and fourteen years steward of the Marine Hospital in Chelsea. He d. at Scituate, 1839, a. 79.

——— K. ———

JACOB TURNER, Esq. "At the age of twenty-eight years, he was appointed a Justice of the Peace for the county of Grafton, in the State of N. H., and served in that capacity in his native town of Lyme, twenty years. During that period he also served as one of the selectmen of the town some eight years, represented Lyme in the Legislature of the State two years, and rendered many other important services to his fellow citizens in capacities less public, such as surveyor of lands, scrivener of Wills, Deeds, and other legal documents.

In 1833, he removed with his family to Lowell, Mass., and in 1842 received a commission of the Peace for the county of Middlesex, in that State, and held the same seven years. In 1848, he removed to Boston, Mass., where he compiled this Genealogical Work, and where he now resides."—D. Turner, Jr.

— Q. —

COL. PHILIP TURNER, of Lyme, N. H., is an active, enterprising and useful man, an ardent promoter of the temperance cause, and of all moral and social enterprises within the sphere of his influence.

He was one of the selectmen of the town several years, was early appointed to the command of a regiment of New Hampshire Militia, and has been in the commission of the Peace many years, in the county of Grafton.

In his younger days, for many years he was a successful teacher of the public schools, and afterwards a superintendent of said schools some fifteen years, in his native town of Lyme, where he now resides.

— R. —

CAPT. JOHN TURNER, Esq., son of Judge John Turner, was distinguished as a man of ability, good sense, and discriminating judgment, and succeeded to a good share of the influence and usefulness possessed by his father.

He was one of the selectmen and assessors thirty-five years, represented the town in the Legislature of the commonwealth twenty years, served as town clerk twenty-eight years, was a member of the first and third Provincial Congress at the commencement of the Revolution in 1774 and 1775, and was also a member of the convention in Mass., which adopted the Constitution of the United States. He was appointed captain and raised a company of volunteers and served in the early stage of the war of the Revolution, was early appointed a Justice of the Peace, and continued in the office until his death in 1820, at the age of eighty-one.

He was decidedly a practical business man,—affable, liberal, benevolent, and arduous in his endeavors to promote moral and social enterprises, and was considered, in a metaphorical sense, as a father of the town.

— S. —

HON. SAMUEL ADAMS TURNER, son of Col. Charles, is a descendant of Thomas, third son of Humphrey. He married Lydia, daughter of Elisha Turner, and they now occupy the same farm on which her predecessor, John, first son of Humphrey, resided. He has been much employed in public business for the last thirty years; and, by his readiness, suavity and integrity, has secured the respect and confidence of his neighbors and a numerous acquaintance. He has for many years served as a Justice of the Peace and of the Quorum, has been surveyor of land, and has represented his native town of Scituate in both branches of the Mass. Legislature. In 1840 he was appointed by the Secretary of War one of the board of visitors to the United States Military Academy, at West Point, N. Y.

COL. ROYAL TURNER is a descendant of Jacob Turner, of the third generation. Jacob m. Jane Vining, and settled in Weymouth, as a farmer, where he had six children, Jacob, Seth, and others.

Seth, son of Jacob and Jane, m. Sarah Shaw, and had several children, and among them Seth.

Col. Seth Turner, son of Seth and Sarah, b. 1727, m. Rebecca Vinton, settled at Stoughton and thence removed to Randolph, where they both died. He was an energetic, intelligent and useful man, and a successful agriculturalist. He served in the old French war, and was at the taking of Quebec. He also served through the war of the Revolution, and a greater part of the time commanded a company in the Mass. line.

After the close of the war, for several years he had the command of a regiment of Mass. militia. His patriotism cost him a large share of a handsome estate, during the French and Revolutionary wars. He had seven children who survived him. He died at the age of seventy-three, highly respected and much beloved by his numerous descendants and an extensive circle of devoted friends.

Seth Turner, Esq., son of Col. Seth and Rebecca, though quite young at the opening of the war of the Revolution, enlisted and served three campaigns, a portion of the time under Capt. Vinton, of Weymouth, in the Mass. line. He was orderly sergeant, and, after the evacuation of Boston by the British troops, had charge of his company, and the battle with others; however, it gave cause for Capt. Drury to prefer charges against him of cowardice. Continuing in the army under Washington, at the siege of Boston he was stationed at Dorchester, and assisted in throwing up the fortifications at this exposed point.

At the evacuation of Boston by the British, in March, 1776, he returned to Grafton, after having most honorably served with his company, and there he continued to take a very energetic part on the side of the people, officiating in many civil and military capacities. He was appointed by the committee and selectmen, May 19, 1777, to take command of the company to guard the State stores then in the town.

Agreeable to resolves of the House of Representatives of June 30, 1781, at the request of Gen. Washington, four regiments were sent to West Point to join the continental army for three months. In the expedition Capt. Drury was commissioned as one of the Lt. Colonels. He remained beyond the term of the enlistment, as Gen. McDougall writes to him, "at my pressing instance." And adding, "he has conducted himself as a faithful, vigilant officer, insomuch that I beg him to accept my thanks for his services."

Col. Drury continued to take a very active part in the affairs of the town, and in the politics of the times, following the Jeffersonian school. Cherishing the idea that he could not be too strenuous, and as he was always fearless when he conceived himself to be in the right, he often made enemies which at times gave him serious trouble. Here was the cause of his having been implicated in the Shay's rebellion, so called, in 1786. He says it was "slander from minds poisoned by party spirit or private pique." Though his enemies made reason for his being imprisoned, yet he was strenuous and active against all known to be engaged with the mob. At the very time of the stopping of the proceedings of the courts at Worcester, he was an officer in defence of government; and his sons were drafted into the army and assisted to put down the insurrection. He was never indicted for any crime, nor was any charge supported against him, although a full and impartial investigation was afterwards had before the Grand Jury. For several years immediately subsequent to this time, the town testified their attachment to him, and their denial of all traitorous intentions on his part, by sending him to represent them in the General Court.

Selling his property at Grafton, consisting of a grist mill, public house, farm, &c., &c., he moved to Marlboro', Mass., where he purchased other valuable property. After a long, useful and energetic public and private life, and after political party clamour with its rancorous seasoning had subsided, April 1, 1811, he died aged seventy-four; and, by his request, was buried among the graves of his relatives and friends in the place of his nativity.

It is a late day for us to think of doing justice to the character of Col. Drury by giving anything like a memoir of his life; but, with a knowledge of there being many imperfections in our account, we hope it will not be esteemed entirely useless in aiding us to cherish his memory.

In connection we beg to be excused for inserting the following Genealogical and Historical Table of the Drury's, which we have been at some considerable trouble to prepare, supposing it cannot but be interesting to the numerous descendants among the Turners emanating maternally from this most respectable family.—T. was stationed several months in the Old South Church. He m. Abigail Wales, settled in Randolph and had two children, Sarah Wales and Royal. He was an energetic and successful farmer, and accumulated a handsome estate by perseverance and untiring industry, and died United States pensioner, and highly respected, a. 86.

Benjamin graduated at Cambridge, 1791, and settled at Milton, Mass., as a Physician.

John graduated at Providence, R. I., and settled in the ministry at Alfred, Me.

Olive m. Luther Thayer, settled at Randolph, and had five children. Her son, George Washington m. Catharine French, and settled in Boston, where he is now President of the Exchange Bank, and there resides.

Col. Royal Turner, son of Esq. Seth and Abigail, graduated at Cambridge, 1813, m. Maria White, daughter of Maj. John White, of Weymouth, and has four children. He has held many responsible offices in his native town of Randolph; was cashier of the Randolph Bank several years, for the last ten years has been President of the same, and is a Director of the Fall River Railroad Company. He is endowed with great enterprise, energy and perseverance of character, is a useful and successful man of business, has accumulated a large estate by his own exertions, and is a person of high standing and influence in the community, both as a gentleman and a man.

His son, Seth, has been Cashier of the Randolph Bank, eleven years.

LYDIA DRURY. The following notice of the death of Mrs. Turner, is taken from the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, published in Boston, July, 1849, by Samuel G. Drake, Esq.

Died, "Mrs. Lydia Turner, Antwerp, Jefferson co., N. Y., 25th March, æ. 86, the relict of Capt. Joshua Turner, and a pensioner for a number of years prior to her death. She was the eldest daughter and third child of Col. Luke Drury of Grafton and Marlboro', Mass., and long since the last of his family of nine children. A numerous progeny in children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren, are scattered throughout the United States, to reverè her memory.—T. L. T."

The father of Mrs. Turner, Col. Drury, the subject of the following sketch, was born in Grafton, March 11, 1737.

Possessed of good natural abilities, with strong powers of mind little improved by early education; he had everything of the practical in his composition. He was brought up at a time when the actual grievances of the Indians, magnified to their eyes by the designing French, created a border warfare which spread through the land, the reports of which constantly ringing in his ears, were made none the less horrible by their having been related again and again at the Winter's fireside. In constant expectation of being turned out as soldiers to protect themselves from the tomahawks and scalping-knives of a ruthless foe, it is not strange that the youths of that day should have had less of polish than a more congenial time would have elicited. It was in this kind of school young Drury commenced his tender age; and the impressions thus early made, were not likely to have been obliterated by the times following in his subsequent life.

As he advanced he is styled miller, farmer and trader. He is engaged extensively in the purchase of real estate; and in fact in all the various business of an active turn in a country town. He officiates as constable and deputy-sheriff, as collector, assessor, select-man, &c. Often as moderator, as which he was Sept. 5, 1774, at a meeting of the town in open, hostile rebellion, bidding defiance to the obnoxious acts of the British Parliament.

As their captain, on the ever memorable 19th of April, 1775, he led the Grafton minute-men to Concord and Lexington. Under the orders of the Committee of Safety of April the 24th of the same year, he enlisted a company, received a commission from them, and immediately joined the forces at Cambridge, in the regiment of Col. Ward. With a part of this regiment, on the 17th of June, he was with his company in the battle of Bunkers Hill, where they had been "ordered immediately to assist at the engagement." Here he lost one man. From some reason their Major did not reach

— W. —

CAPT. LARKIN TURNER is an apt illustration of the force of character. Born in Grafton, Mass., in the house of his grandfather, Col. Luke Drury, a combination of circumstances supplied him with his christian name, which he received, without any relationship existing between the families, from Dea. John Larkin, of Charlestown, Mass. Having received his preliminary education of six months during the Winters, when nothing different could be found for him to do, at the age of fourteen he was "put out" to learn the trade of a shoemaker. Soon, however, he conceived the idea of entering into something more active. His ardent temperament suggested to him the sea; and as his uncle, John Drury, was in the practice of medicine at Marblehead, Mass., thither he repaired. Here, scarce sixteen years of age, he commenced in his new career under that uncle's guidance. And, after passing through all the grades of an arduous seafaring life, resulting, at the age of twenty-two, in the command of a vessel from the counting house of that prince of merchants, William Gray, Esq.

A strict disciplinarian, severe as occasion called, cautious in management on shipboard, and to his crews ever kind, treating them with parental anxiety. During near forty years there were few parts of the world to which he had not navigated, and few experiencing less accidents usually resulting therefrom.

The want of early education beset him at every turn; but his indomitable perseverance supplied the deficiency. He gave himself instruction as occasion called for new efforts; enabling him, as a merchant and shipmaster, to take high rank in the business undertaken.

His modest and gentlemanly bearing at once gained him friends, and caused in him to be placed implicit confidence. In 1831, John Randolph, of Roanoke, then minister plenipotentiary to the Russian court, did him the honor to make him his confidential agent and bosom friend. And in the years 1836 and 1837 he was twice sent to the Massachusetts Legislature, to represent his adopted town of Charlestown, declining the tender made to him of a third nomination.

In 1832, after an eventful life incident only to a sailor, and seeing an extra "shot in his locker," he concluded to moor his yet sturdy bark in that happy haven, to him long wished for, a harbor on shore. This at the present time he enjoys, in the bosom of his family, in perfect health, at his country seat in the patriotic town of Lexington, Mass.

SALLY GOULD was the only child of Deacon Joseph Gould—than whom a better man, we are disposed to believe, never lived. Born at South Reading, Mass., Dec. 12, 1764, he was brought up in strict Calvinistic faith; but, residing in Boston in 1791, he became acquainted with the Rev. John Murry, who, as he conceived, showed him a plainer and more perfect path in which to live and by which to die. For years he was a deacon of the Universalist Church in Charlestown, Mass., until his death, which occurred in 1834. A more charitable or more kind hearted man it would have been difficult to find. Always jocose and lively in conversation, few there are who knew him will forget the smiling countenance of "Father Gould." He had often been told that "his religion might be well to live by, but he would repent himself of it when on his death bed." Bearing this always in mind, the last words he was known to utter, were, "I wish all to know that I die full in the faith of universal salvation."—T. L. T.

SHOULD success attend the disposal of this work, and facts sufficient come up, it may be deemed proper, at some future period, to issue another edition of what is, as we conceive, a decided treasure to the name of Turner. For the able compilation of which, Jacob Turner, Esq., of Boston, deserves all praise; and, for the publication of which, we are mainly indebted to the liberality of David Turner, Jr., Esq., of Richmond, Va. To make another edition comparatively perfect, it is earnestly requested that all will feel interested in correcting the errors of this, and will furnish data, however trivial, wherever they are deficient. It will be seen that with a family as numerous in its descent as that of Humphrey Turner, whole branches may have escaped notice, which all will admit must have been unintentional. Bearing in mind, that in the mutability of things human, records and documents for this purpose are perishing, precluding the chance of descendants doing that which your neglect renders impossible at a future day. To correct such omissions it is earnestly requested that the necessary facts will be forthcoming from the parties themselves.

This concluding article, justly due to the gentlemen above-named, has been inserted at the subscriber's request; and to whom all corrections, additions and inquiries may be addressed.
